Thohoyandou Botanical Garden, Limpopo Province, South Africa

TBG is situated in the northern part of Limpopo Province in South Africa. It has in its collection a number of medicinal plants important to the local people. It plays a very important role in conservation of such species since a number of activities are not allowed in the botanical garden. The project aims to improve the botanical garden for the benefit of all the stakeholders interested in it. The project is being carried out as a way of community outreach through funding from Lotto south Africa. The revamping of the Botanical garden will give the local underprivileged communities an opportunity to be closely associated with nature through visits in the garden.
